"IS IT A SIN TO LOVE THEE?"

BY WILDE.

Why arouse the conflict that for years has rack'd my soul,
But at last had ceased its surges, as the billows cease to roll?
Why awake the slumbering conscience by asking "if it be
A sin to love one" who has ever worshipped thee?
Were thy strange idolatry less in passion power,
Then thy spirit's weakness might deplore the hour
When first our raptured souls drank ill the fearless vision
Of the golden, misty splendor, that veiled a life Elysian?

I remember too the hour we thought to break the bands
That bound our souls, but even then we closer clasped our hands;
And bewildered stood we, silent, on the portal,
Forgetful of the world, forgetting we were mortal.
Whispers of the angel were unheeded mid the bliss
Of loving, and the wildly given kiss.
Even though it were a sin, could we then have broke the spell?
Ah, no! the fate was ours to love, unwisely and too well!

I would not that my hand be one to drag thee down;
I'd rather place upon thy brow the victor's starry crown.
I would not dim thy manhood's glory with the crimson blush of shame,
If it be a sin to love me, if to love me be but pain.
If thy sacrifice is great, dost think thou mine is small?
If thou hast given me thy homage, I have given thee my all;
If thou hast had thy hours of anguish, have I not drank of bitterness?
And though all the gloom of conflict, I have known thee but to bless.

Not ours the laggard souls to tarry on the strand
That bars the sleepy doorway to a golden Fairy-land.
Not ours the hearts to falter when shown the hidden glory;
Not ours the brows to whiten when told the mystic story:
But ours the souls undaunted,—heeding not the warring din—
That loveth on through fate and fortune, believing it no sin.
And fronting a pitiless fate, with a heart as proud as thine,
I murmur in the hour of triumph, "thou art mine, forever mine."

This love of ours—so holy, pure and sweet as seraph song,
A love so silent and endearing—is it, can it be a wrong?
Who can read the many figures of the heart's uncertain lore?
Who can find the gems of ocean, if fettered on the shore?
If our hearts have traced the story, fearing not to name;
If our souls have broke the shackles, how can it be shame?
Though between our lives the Bridge of human law is wide,
Together through the Unseen, tread we side by side.

'Tis not a sin for us to love, but loving, that we may
By sacrifice and patient waiting see the perfect day
That lights the upturned brows of jewelled hosts above,
Where life is life immortal, where 'tis not a sin to love.
And when thou say'st thy orisons, at morning or at even,
Fear not to ask for me the priceless gift of Heaven;
And with hearts thus sanctified, we can pray that God the Giver
Grant a life, a love, a hope, to us beyond the river.

THE WORKMAN AHEAD.—A good story is told of a certain prominent railroad gentleman of Philadelphia, who is equally renowned for his ability to make and take a joke. A railroad employee, whose home is in Avon came on Saturday night to ask for a pass down to visit his family.

"You are in the employ of the railroad?" said the gentleman alluded to

"Yes."

"You receive you pay regularly?"

"Yes."

"Well now, suppose you were working for a farmer instead of a railroad, would you expect your employer to hitch up his team every Saturday night and carry you home?"

This seemed a poser, but it wasn't.

"No," said the man promptly, "I would not expect that, but if the farmer had his team hitched up, and was going my way, I should call him a darned mean cuss if he wouldn't let me ride."

Mr. Employee came out in three minutes afterwards with a pass good for twelve months.

IRISH WIT.—Winchell tells a story of a stranger meeting an Emeralder who was leaning against a post, looking at a funeral procession coming out of a house, when the following dialogue ensued:

"Is that a funeral?"

"Yes, sir, I'm thinking it is."

"Any body of distinction?"

"I reckon it is, sir."

"Who is it that is dead?"

"Why the gentleman in the coffin, to be sure," replied Pat, with a knowing look.

THE BIBLE.—There are sixty-two books in the Bible, written by forty different men. Some were written by statesmen, some by kings, some by shepherds, some by vinedressers, some by prophets and apostles, and some by physicians. The authors lived in different countries, and wrote at different ages of the world, there having been one thousand five hundred years from the writing of the first book to that of the last. Yet there are no special contradictions, but a wonderful harmony throughout the whole.

☞ A physician stopped at the door of a country apothecary and inquired for a pharmacopœa

"Sir," said the apothecary, "I know of no such farmer living about these parts."

☞ It was a laconic letter from a lady to her husband:

"I write to you because I have nothing to do, and I conclude because I have nothing to say."

☞ Little is denied to industry and perseverance, though much is frequently acquired with either.

☞ Capacity for greatness exists in the most humble. Circumstances only are required for its development.

☞ Why is laziness like money?—Because the more a man has of it, the more he wants.

☞ What is the first thing a lady does when she falls into the water? She gets wet.

☞ Flattery is an art easily practiced, and promptly rewarded.

Gems of Western Scenery.

BY HON. SCHUYLER COLFAX.

The near approach of the season when many families and individuals will be discussing the direction in which they shall turn their steps to enjoy the pleasures of travel, induces me to write this article, commending a Western journey toward our own Pacific slope, rather than daring the storms of the ocean by a visit to Europe. The extravagant and oftquoted exclamation, "See Naples, and die," has in the past turned the thoughts of many whose leisure and means enable them to travel to the Old World, where so much that is picturesque, so much that is noted in history, so much that is sublime in grandeur, is to be witnessed. Not "to die," of course. But to make life happier ever more, by the wider experience, the broadened mind, the fuller knowledge that results from travel, besides the pictures of impressive scenery so often ineffaceably impressed upon the mind, and which the mystic power of memory can summon again and again, before the mental vision

It has always seemed to me however, wiser and more profitable for Americans to travel over the continental area of their own nation, to learn more thoroughly by actual observation of the grandeur of its more than imperial domain and vastness of its almost illimitable resources, as well as to enjoy the magnificent scenery of its mountains, before they ramble in regions foreign to them in all their interests, and which excel their own land in attractive features mainly in antiquity and accumulated wealth, rather than in natural scenery which gladdens the eye by its beauty.

Of Salt Lake City, and the peerless Yosemites, so much has been written the past season by tourists that I shall omit the reference to them here, and allude to other objects of interest to be found by traveling toward the setting sun.

The Rocky Mountains and Colorado.

Where the Union Pacific Railroad reaches its highest summit, at Sherman, over 8,000 feet above the level of the sea, but little mountain scenery is discernible. Like the South Pass, on the old route of emigrant travel, and Bridger's Pass, on the latter route of the daily overland stage, the Railroad Pass seems to have been marked out by Nature, leveling down these mountains that form the backbone of the North American Continent.

To see the Rocky Mountains in their majesty, with the wonderful parks (lying 6,000 or 8,000 above the sea and larger in area than some of our States) which they enfold in their embracing arms, the traveler should leave the Pacific Railroad at Cheyenne for Denver, 110 miles south, half of which distance is already traversed by rail, and the rest a fine natural road, requiring but a few hours in a stage coach. There, on the bank of the Platte, with the apparently boundless plains to the north east and south, a sublime panorama of mountain scenery to the west is ever before the beholder. In the glance of a moment the eye sweeps over one hundred and twenty miles of a range, with its peaks and cliffs and table mountains, grandly towering toward the skies, sparkling in the morning sun, darkening at eventide, and blackened sometimes by the storms that sweep over it.—Cities, and mines, and natural parks are embosomed within it. A deep blue sky that could scarcely be rivaled by Italy, almost always gladdens you. And the air that you breathe, clear and dry and pure, is like a tonic to the system. Two or three weeks will enable the traveler to cross the Snowy Range on horseback at the Berthaud or Bowler Pass, some 12,000 ft. above the sea, with grand and changing views at every hour; enjoy the beauty of the brilliant flora close to the edge of the snowline; traverse the Middle Park, surrounded amphitheatrically by its encircling mountains; visit the Sulphur Springs, and enjoy its healing virtues; and ascending Gray's Peak, 15,000 feet high, see mountains rolling away in every direction. Returning to Denver through the mining towns of Empire, Georgetown, Central City, etc., and stopping over at Idaho, the Saratoga of Colorado, you can visit the South Park on wheels; ascend the majestic Mount Lincoln, chief of the towering mountains of our nation; cross the range over the valley of the Arkansas, and the charming surroundings of its Twin Lakes; and return by Colorado City, the Garden of the Gods, and Pike's Peak (a mountain standing out from the Range on the Plains, and comparatively easy of ascent,) back again to Denver; the whole of the South Park trip, with its wild and varied scenery, easily performed in a carriage—except, of course the ascent of Mount Lincoln. Nowhere can three weeks be more profitably and delightfully spent by the invalid or the seeker of the pleasures of travel; and to those who enjoy the roughing and bracing experiences of camping-out, and the pleasure of fishing in streams filled with delicious trout, there is a double enjoyment.

The Great Basin and the Sierras.

Dashing on westward in a "Pullman Palace Car"—the perfection of ease in travel—you cross the great intermontane basin of the continent, which, over 300 miles by 600 miles in extent, walled in by the Rocky mountains and the Sierra Nevadas, has no outlet for its waters in any direction of the sea. Here rivers, like the Echo Canon, and Humboldt, rise, swell into fine streams, and then, instead of seeking the ocean through lake or bay sink forever out of sight; and other rivers, so large in volume as to be unfordable, like the Weber and Bear, pour their fresh waters into Great Salt Lake—that inland sea 100 miles in length, with mountainous islands towering above it—to have them converted there into the briniest water on the globe—so salt that fish cannot live in it, and so dense that those who cannot swim float in it like a cork. The grandest scenery in this part of the route to the Pacific is where the road passes through Echo Canon, formerly the gateway of approach to the Mormon capital, and fortified by the followers of Brigham Young against the approach of the United States army, sent there by President Buchanan, in 1858. It is a natural valley, cut through a mountain range, opening widely at its eastern approach, with grassy and sloping hillsides on either hand, but gradually narrowing in between bold and precipitous rocks until, where it strikes the Weber Valley there is but little more space than the iron tracks require. The Devil's Gate and Weber Canon rival it in their bold and striking features.

Curving northerly, to strike old the emigrant trail, in the Valley of the Humboldt (apparently designed by Providence, like the Valley of the Platte, Echo Canon, etc., for the pathway of the swift Railroad Company, with almost herculean labors, carried their trains over its summits. Words are weak to describe the engineering which achieved this result. Enormous ravines filled up by the persistent labor of years, huge hills cut down to the required grade, dark tunnels blasted though towering cliffs, a track cut into the side of almost precipitous mountains, where from the car-window you can look down into the valley 2,500 feet beneath you, and nearly forty miles of snow sheds of solid timbers to guard against the thirty feet snows for which the Sierras are famed. All these triumphs of man over the obstacles of Nature attest the grandeur and immensity of the work by which this frowning range has been scaled.

Nor is it a single range, as has been generally supposed. There are often two or three ranges, with their respective summits; and instead of crossing them in eight or ten miles, they roll away in a billowy succession of mountains, seventy miles, and over in width clothed in the living green of gigantic forests, until, above the bases which wagon and railroad trains have sought, the line is reached of perpetual, unmelting snow.

At Summit Station, over seven thousand feet above the sea (and at and around which the summer traveler can spend a delightful day, with a pleasant and homelike inn for meals and rest,) you look down on Donner Lake, nestling so quietly and attractively amongst the mountains as to charm you with its beauty. And you will not soon forget a drive on its shores, with its unruffled waters at your side, and the grand and impressive view of the railroad track carved along the face of the range which overhangs it, and which you can follow with the eye for miles.

Lake Tahoe.

But the pre-eminent gem of scenery of the Sierras lies a few miles from the Pacific Railroad. Leaving it at Truckee, the next station east of Summit, a stage takes you fifteen miles up the valley of the impetuous and brawling Truckee river, which falls 600 feet in that distance, and there embosomed amongst these mountain summits, surrounded by dense forests and snow clad-peaks, 6,500 feet above the sea is Lake Tahoe.

It is a beautiful sheet of water, 20 miles by 10 miles in extent, so exquisitely clear that you can see fifty to one hundred feet down, as if it were but ten, and with a steamboat upon it, on which you can sail the fifteen miles between the hotels that are built at opposite ends of this remarkable mountain lake, and enjoy an experience difficult to duplicate abroad.

FASHIONABLE WOMEN.—Fashion kills more women than toil and sorrow.—Obedience to fashion is a greater transgression of the laws of woman's nature, a greater injury to her physical and mental constitution, than the hardships of poverty and neglect. The slave woman at her task will live and grow old, and see two or three generations of her mistresses fade and pass away. The washerwoman, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, will live to see her fashionable sisters all extinct. The kitchen maid is hearty and strong, when her lady has to be nursed like a sick baby. It is a sad truth that fashion pampered women are almost worthless for all the good ends of life; they have but little force of character; they have still less power of moral will, and quite as little physical energy. They live for no great purpose in life—they are dolls, formed in the hands of milliners and servants, to be dressed and fed to order. They dress nobody, they bless nobody, and save nobody. They write no books, they set no rich examples of virtue and woman's life. If they rear children, servants and nurses do all, save to conceive and give them birth. And when reared what are they? What do they ever amount to, but weaker scions of the old stock?—Who ever heard of a fashionable woman's child exhibiting any virtue and power of mind, for which it became eminent? Read biographies of our great and good men and women. No one of them had a fashionable mother. They nearly all sprung from strong minded women, who had about as little to do with fashion as with the changing clouds.

For Moderate Drinkers.

A "merchant prince of New York, a portly six-footer, of great manly beauty, who never dined without his brandy and water, nor went to bed without a terrapin or oyster supper, and who was never known to be drunk, died of chronic diarrhea, a common end of those who are never intoxicated and never out of liquor.—Hall's Journal of Health gives this account of his death:—

Months before he died—he was a year in dying—he could eat nothing without distress, and at death the whole alimentary canal was a mass of disease; in the midst of his millions he died of inanition. That is not the half, reader. He had been a steady drinker, a daily, for twenty-eight years. Scrofula had been eating up one daughter for fifteen years; another in the mad house; the third and fourth of unearthly beauty; but they blighted, paled and faded—into heaven we trust—in their sweet teens; another is tottering on the verge of the grave, and only one is left with all the senses, and each of them is as weak as water.

The same periodical instances another case that should supplement the one just given:—

A gentleman of thirty-five was sitting in a chair with no especially critical symptoms present; still, he was known to be a dissipated young man. He rose, ran fifty feet, fell down and died. The whole covering of the brain was thickened, its cavities were filled with a fluid that did not belong to it, enough to kill half-a-dozen with apoplexy—a greater portion of one lung was in a state of gangrene, and nearly all the other was hardened and useless; blood and yellow matter plastered the inner covering of the lungs, while angry patches of destructive inflammation were scattered along the whole alimentary canal. Why, there was enough of death in that one man's body to have killed forty. The doctor who talks about guzzling liquor every day being healthy is a perfect disgrace to the medical name, and ought to be turned out to break stone for the term of his natural life at a shilling a day, and find himself.

Josh Billings in a New Role.

Josh Billings is now in the editor's chair, and his answers to correspondents include the following:

Fred—You aint obliged to ask the girl's mother if you may go home with her from a party; get the girl's endorsement and go in; it is proper enough to ask her to take your arm, but you have no right to put your arm around her waist unless you meet a bear on the road and then you are supposed to relinquish your hold as soon as the bear gets safely by.

Whip—You are right—mules live to a lonely age, and I have known them myself to live to one hundred years and not half try. You are also right about their being surefooted; I have known them to kick a boy twice in a second, ten feet off.

Gertrude—Your inquiry stumps me. The more I think about it, the more I cant tell. As near as I can recollect now, I think I don't know. Much might be said both ways; neither may be right. Upon the whole, I think I would or wouldn't, just as I think best or otherwise Plutarch—You are mistaken; the Shaker's don't marry. If young Shakers fall in love they are set to weddin onions, which kures them forthworthly. I can't tell you how much it takes to join the Shakers, but I believe the expenses used to be, including having your hair cut and learning to dance, about sixty-five dollars.

Sportsman—Your inquiry is not exactly in my line but I haste to reply as follows, to wit: The right length to cut off a dorg's tail has never been fully discovered, but it is undoubtedly somewhere back of the ears, provided you get the dorg's consent. N. B.—It is not necessary to have dorg's consent in writing.

Kitty—To my own personal views in the premises, it appears that the best rat and mice exterminator is a well-regulated Thomas cat; beware of base imitations; sold by the respectable druggists.

A GOOD WIFE.—The following sentences, from Archbishop on Secker's "Wedding Ring," are worth reading twice:

Hast thou a soft heart? it is of God's breaking. Hast thou a sweet wife? she is of God's making? The Hebrews have a saying, "He is not a man that hath not a woman." Though man alone may be good, yet it is not good that man should be alone. "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above." A wife, though she be not a perfect gift, a beam darted from the sun of mercy. How happy are those marriages where Christ is at the wedding! Let none but those who have found favor in God's eyes find favor in yours. Husbands should spread a mantle of charity over their wives' infirmities. Do not put out the candle because of the snuff. Husbands and wives should prove one another to love; and they should love one another, notwithstanding provocations. The tree of love should grow up in the midst of the family, as the tree of life grew in the garden of Eden. Good servants are a great blessing blessing; good children a greater blessing; and such a help let him look for that lacks one; let him sigh for him that hath lost one; let him delight in him that enjoys one.

☞ A good guess at a tailor's name Mr. So and so.

How People Take Cold.

Not by tumbling into the river and dragging home wet as a drowned rat; not by being pitched into the mud, or spilled out in the snow in sleighing time; not by walking for hours, over shoe top in mud; not by soaking in the rain, without an umbrella; not by scrubbing the floor until the unmentionable sticks to you like a wet rag; not by hoeing potatoes until you are in a lather of sweat; these are not the things which give people colds; and yet they are all the time telling us how they "caught their death of cold by exposure."

The time for taking cold is after you exercise; the place is in your house.—It is not the act of exercising which gives the cold, but the getting cool too quick after exercise. For example, you walk very fast to get to the railroad station, or to the ferry, or to catch the omnibus, or to make time for an appointment; your mind being ahead of you, the body makes an extra effort to keep up with it, and when you get to the desired spot, you raise your hat and find yourself in a perspiration; you take a seat, and feeling quite comfortable as to temperature, you begin to talk with a friend, or if a New Yorker, to read a newspaper, and before you are aware of it, you experience a sensation of chilliness, and the thing is done; you look around to see where the cold comes from, and find an open window near you, or a door, or that you have taken a seat at the forward part of the car, and it moving against the wind, a strong draft is made through the crevices.

After any kind of exercise, do not stand a moment at a street corner, for anybody or anything; nor at an open door or window. When you have been exercising in any way whatever, winter or summer, go home at once, or to some sheltered place; and, however warm the room may soon become, do not at once pull off your hat and coat, but wait awhile—some five minutes or more, and lay aside one at a time; thus acting, a cold is impossible. Notice a moment: When you return from a brisk walk, and you enter a warm room, raise your hat, and your forehead will be moist; let the hat remain a few moments and feel the forehead again, and it will be dry, showing that the room is actually cooler than your body, and that, with out-door clothing on, you have really cooled off full soon enough. Many of the severest colds I have ever known men to take, were the result of sitting down to a warm meal in a cool room after a long walk; or to being engaged in writing, have let the fire go out, and their first admonition of it was the creeping chilliness which is the ordinary forerunner of a severe cold. Persons have often lost their lives by writing or reading in a room where there was no fire, although the weather outside was rather comfortable. Sleeping in rooms long unused has destroyed the life of many a visitor and friend. Our splendid parlors and our nice "spare rooms" help to enrich many a doctor.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Borrowing.

"My dear," said Mrs. Greene to her husband, one morning, "the meal that we borrowed from Mr. Black, a few days ago, is almost out, and we must bake to-morrow."

"Well," said her husband, "send and borrow a half bushel at Mr. White's; he sent to the mill yesterday."

"And when it comes shall we return the peck we borrowed more than a month ago from the widow Grey?"

"No!" said the husband gruffly, "she can send for it when she wants it.—Sam, do you go down to Mr. Brown's and ask him to lend me his axe to chop some wood this forenoon, our's is dull, and I saw him grind his last night.—And Jim, do you go down to Mr. Clark's and ask him to lend me a hammer, and, do you hear? you might as well borrow a few nails while you are about it."

A little boy enters, and says:

"Father sent me to ask if you had done with his hoe, which you borrowed a week ago last Wednesday; he wants to use it."

"Wants his hoe, child? What can he want with it? I have not done with it yet; but if he wants it I suppose he must have it. Tell him to send it back, though, as soon as he can spare it."

They sit down to breakfast. "Oh, mercy," exclaimed Mrs. Greene, "there is not a parcel of butter in the house. Si, run over to Mrs. Notable's—she always has excellent butter in her dairy—and ask her to lend me a platterful."

After a few minutes Si returns:—"Mrs. Notable says she has sent you the butter, but begs you to remember that she has already lent you seventy-nine platefuls, which are scored on the dairy door."

"Seventy-nine platefuls!" exclaimed the astonished Mrs. Green, holding up both hands. "It is no such a thing; I never had half that quantity; and if I had, what is a little plateful? I should never think of keeping account of such a trifling affair; I declare I have a mind never to borrow anything of that mean creature again as long as I live.

☞ An Italian in his 110th year, being asked the secret of his living so long, replied: "When hungry, of the best I eat, and dry and warm I keep my feet; I screen my head from sun and rain, and let few cares perplex my brain."

☞ "I say, John, where did you get that rogue's hat? "Please your honor," said John, "'tis an old one of yours that missus gave me yesterday, when you went to town."

THE bill to admit Texas to representation in Congress passed the House on Tuesday by a strict party vote.

IT is reported that the House Committee on Foreign Affairs will agree on qualified recognition of the Cubans and will so report to the House as early as possible.

THE San Domingo Treaty for the purchase of the Bay of Samana, is now be certainly rejected by the U. S. Senate. The Committee on Foreign Affairs will report against it.

THE President has sent a message to the Senate, in answer to an inquiry of that body, stating that thirty States had ratified the Fifteenth Amendment including New York and Indiana.

THE Committee of Ways and Means have decided to report the Border Raid bill favorably by a vote of 9 to 7. All the Democrats on the Committee voted in favor of the bill.

A HOAX.—It was telegraphed from Harrisburg, on Wednesday, that Dr. Paul Schoeppe had escaped from Carlisle jail, but it turned out to be a hoax. The doctor is fast enough.

THERE is a good deal of opposition to Cullom's bill abolishing polygamy in Utah. It is urged that such an enactment could only result in a costly conflict and another Mormon migration.

THE bill giving the widow of Justice Stanton one years' salary has passed both Houses of Congress, (in the Senate without a dissenting vote) and been signed by the President. It took less than three days to enact it.

Soldiers who enlisted in 1861 on the first call of President Lincoln, and who were honorably discharged before the expiration of the term of their enlistment, are entitled to $100 as bounty. Such was the decision of the Supreme Court just pronounced.

A NUMBER of the mechanics and employees at the bureau of engraving and printing at the Treasury Department have been dismissed, the work of that bureau being conducted in the most economical scale, in consequence of the appropriation therefor being nearly exhausted.

A BILL has been before our Legislature to legalize a higher rate of interest that six per cent. The act was referred to a committee, which reported adversely on it, therefore no change has been or will be effected this session. The legal rate remains at 6 per cent.

EVERY one is agreed that the decline in gold is the forerunner of good times. The New York Herald says: "For the present all looks well and promising. The balance of the trade is favorable, and that rules the money market and price of gold." So far President Grant's administration is a brilliant success.

THE Hon. Wm. Strong was sworn into office as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States on Monday last. It is said that he was cordially welcomed by the Chief Justice and the other Associates that his seat is the outside one on the right of the Chief Justice, and that he is regarded as one of the finest looking men on the bench.

THERE is great exasperation in official circles at the reported exultation of the British captain, Eyrie, over the running down of the United States steamer Oneida, and the matter will be made the subject of official investigation The Secretary of the Navy has already been called on by the Senate for information, and if the reports are borne out by the facts a demand will be made on England for the swift punishment of the brute who commands the Bombay. Leading Senators and Representatives characterize Eyrie as a fiend and deserving of instant death on proof of his guilt being established.

THE STATE RATIO.—By the provisions of our State Constitution, representation in the Senate and House at Harrisburg is based upon resident taxables. The Constitution limits the Senators to thirty-three, and the House members to one hundred. Consequently the ratio increases every 7 years. For the House the ratio in 1794 was only 908 taxables, but in 1864 it had reached 6,400, or 640,000 resident taxables in the State. At the usual rate of increase the next census will give us about 728,000 taxables, and a probable population of 3,644,000 in the State.

The State dinners at the White House are at the expense of the President. These dinners cost from three to fifteen hundred dollars, though the average cost is about seven hundred. The State dinner of which Prince Arthur had the honor of partaking, was composed of twenty-nine courses, and cost fifteen hundred dollars; but it is only when royalty is to be entertained that these feasts assume such costly proportions.

We have become somewhat accustomed of late years to hear and talk of millions, but we confess to being startled by noticing among the proceedings of our State Legislature, the passage through both Houses, inside of twenty-four hours, of a bill appropriating nine and a half millions of the assets in the Treasury to certain projected railroads in the northern and western parts of the State. The bonds thus proposed to be abstracted are the proceeds of the sale of the Canals and Railroads, the construction of which involved the State in an immense debt, many times greater than the sums realized by the sale of the Public Works.

By the eleventh article of the Constitution, the proceeds of the sale of the Public Works were prohibited from being used except for the extinguishment of the public debt, and the State was prohibited from lending its credit or means to the construction of any railroads or becoming a stockholder therein. This section was adopted in consequence of the enormous losses sustained by the State in the loan of her credit and money to numerous projects of improvement, some of which by the way were to Turnpike and Canal Companies in the very region now embraced in the present projects.

It looks to us certainly like a violation of the spirit at least of the Constitution, and we trust that Governor Geary will interpose his veto.

We are by no means opposed to having the resources of our State developed; on the contrary we are always disposed to encourage the construction of railroads in any direction, but the extreme haste and the quiet manner in which this bill has been put through excites suspicion. There are no big letters in the newspapers announcing its passage; no copy of the bill has fallen under our notice in any of our exchanges; our members, usually very attentive in advising us of proposed changes in county lines or modifications of school districts, seem to have overlooked this bill until called to vote upon it, when their names are found among the yeas. We need light on the subject and look to the Governor for a veto which will at least delay the passage of the bill.

Legislative Summary.

The Treasury Investigation.—In the State Senate on Friday a week, the resolution requiring Gen. Irwin, late State Treasurer, to appear and answer for his refusal to testify in the Treasury investigation, was reconsidered and postponed by a vote of 16 to 10. This is a complete back down of the Senate The further investigation of this subject is abandoned.

On Monday, the House Committee on the Treasury investigation reported that it had not been possible to fix the charge of corruption upon any person in connection with the election of State Treasurer. This being the case, can not the Legislature prevent further investigations and less corruption by submitting an amendment to the people making it an elective office?

A New Police Bill.—On Tuesday a new Philadelphia Police Bill was introduced into the Senate and passed to a third reading. It will pass both Houses, and it is said the Governor will sign it.

The Local Option Bill.—On Wednesday a bill allowing the people of each county, city or township to vote on the license question was considered in the House. It was amended so as to allow brewers to sell not less than four gallons. Elections may be held not oftener than once in three years. The bill passed by 59 yeas to 33 nays.

Gambling Bill.—The Gambling Bill, a very stringent one, punishing all persons playing any game of chance for money with fine and imprisonment, was passed finally on Wednesday, by 65 yeas to 13 nays.

General Appropriation Bill.—The General Appropriation Bill, which has passed the House, was reported in the Senate on Thursday with amendments reducing the appropriations in the aggregate over half a million dollars.

☞ The New York Tribune indulges in the following reminiscence as pertinent to the present Indian situation:

"About the year 1830, a white trader near Council Bluffs, finding himself cheated in a fur trade by some Pawnees, loaded a horse with the clothes of a man who had died with small-pox, drove it into their village, and went on his way rejoicing. Two or three months afterwards, Colonel Dougherty (the famous Indian agent for so many years beyond the Mississippi), with his troop, visited this village for the purpose of making the annual settlement. For miles along the prairie scattered human bones were bleaching in the hot August sun; as he came nearer, the bodies, swelled and putrefying, of the more recent victims were found, usually at the end of the pools or water courses, where the poor wretches had crept in their agony of thirst. In the village itself there was the silence of death. Out of thirty villages visited by Dougherty that summer, only two had escaped. Naturally, a massacre of the whites followed the next winter; and again, of course, this was succeeded by a still more bloody slaughter of the Indians by the Government troops."

Miss Loretta Mann, of Adrian, Mich. somewhat noted in various parts of the State last fall as a "walkist," is now pursuing her studies in the Philadelphia Medical College. She performed her pedestrian feats for the purpose of raising money to this end.

A JEALOUS SPARROW'S REVENGE.—In the interior of the Tyne Dock wagon shops the attention of one of the workmen was attracted to the movements of a pair of sparrows engaged in constructing a nest in a hollow where two girders met for the support of the iron roof. For several days they labored most assiduously in preparing their abode, when, by some sudden freak, the progress of the tiny fabric was suspended. A few mornings afterwards the ears of the workmen were saluted by loud chirruping and the fluttering of wings, and from what transpired subsequently it was evident that the female bird had severed connubial bond, and enlisted the affections of another, who now vigorously contended with the rejected bird for the possession of the nest. For several hours the conflict continued, until the usurper proved the strongest. The rejected bird shortly afterwards returned and hovered about the spot, apparently watching an opportunity for revenge. This speedily occurred, for in the course of a short time newly joined pair left for a brief period. In their absence the defeated sparrow approached the nest, and, placing his back beneath the feathery mass, raised it from its resting-place, and sent it to the ground. The surprise of the other birds on their return at beholding the demolition of their dwelling appeared to be great, and was amusing to observe. Notwithstanding this disaster, however, they commenced building a second nest in the same place, the rejected mate watching their proceedings with apparent interest. After two days of incessant labor, they again left for a short time, and, taking advantage of their absence, the disappointed bird again demolished their residence. The birds, on their return, commenced building their third nest, with what result we know not.—Our Own Fire side for March.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A young lady by the name of Williams, employed in the hoopskirt factory of D. H. Fanning, in Worcester, Mass., met with an accident on Friday, by which she lost her front hair and was otherwise injured about the head. She was down upon the floor, engaged in cleaning up around a revolving shaft, which runs under a table or bench, and a few hairs on the front of her head got entangled and wound up with the shaft, without her knowledge, until so much of it had caught that she could not free herself. Her cries brought the other girls of the room to her aid, and while some of them were engaged in trying to throw off the belt that turned the shaft, one, with quick thought as to what must be done, seized a knife and cut off the hair before it had torn the poor girl's scalp off, though it had raised it up in an ugly manner, and drawn her head so near that a set-screw struck her on the face at each revolution, and cut it bad gash. She was taken to her home on South bridge street, and medical aid was procured. One girl hurt her hand in trying to throw the belt off, and another sprained her ankle in running down stairs for help Shafting so near the floor should not be exposed, especially where girls are employed, as there is danger that their skirts will get caught, as they have in many instances, and more serious consequences will follow.

A SAD ROMANCE.—In conversation with a very intelligent and accomplished lady from Maine, a few days since, I learned the following facts, which throw the shadow of a sad romance over the Oneida disaster: Commander Williams, the highest officer on the vessel, and one of the lost, was a widower of something less than forty, and the father of two bright little children. In May last he contracted an engagement for a second marriage, which was to have taken place very soon after the arrival of the Oneida in this country. I believe it was fixed for the middle of April. He left the United States for Japan in June last, and just before his departure he was one of a dinner party at which my informant and the affianced bride were also present. Had he returned safely he would have known a fate which his brave heart would not have met with the cool courage that faced death, at his post on the quarter deck. Since the first of January his two children and his intended wife have died.—When he left Japan he had not heard this sad news, but supposed he was coming home to meet them all in health and happiness. So to one at least, of the gallant men who went down on the ill-fated steamer, death can not be called disaster.—Washington Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE LARGEST HOG IN THE WORLD.—The American Republican, published at West Chester, says: On Monday last, Mr. Jefferson Shaner, of West Chester, slaughtered the largest hog of which we have any record. The hog was a Chester White, and was two years and five months old. It measured six feet and ten inches from the tail to between the ears, seven feet and three inches in girth just behind the fore legs, and seven feet and nine inches around the middle. The head weighed 74 pounds; and the weight of the whole hog neatly dressed, was ten hundred and forty pounds. Good judges estimated that he would make 600 lbs. of lard. He was a good feeder, we are assured that for the last four months he did not drink any water. It was purchased by Messrs. Conner & Martin at 12 cents per pound, making $124,80. A pretty round sum for one hog. Some years ago the late Joseph Morgan killed a hog which weighed 1053 pounds; but Mr. Shaner's hog dressed in the same manner weighed 1064. This is the largest hog of which we have any account.

A leading physician of Indianapolis received a present of a turkey from Brownsville last week, and had it served a day afterwards to his family, but before cutting it a cat was given a small part and immediately died in convulsions. No suspicion was aroused in the mind of the Doctor, and he proceeded to help himself, but on the first taste he detected poison. An examination revealed the presence of sufficient poison to kill five hundred persons. The villain is believed to be a member of the family.

The proposition to establish a State uniformity in text books used in the public schools has been defeated by a most decisive majority in both branches of the Maine Legislature.

He had accomplished in a few weeks what he had expected would require a year, and his joyous excitement was so great as to throw him into a brain fever, from which he died.

☞ The other week a congregation in San Francisco were singing "Rock of ages, cleft for me," and as they were about to complete the petition 'Let me hide myself in thee," the strata underneath began to heave and rock, as if there were a prospect of the immediate realization of the devout wish. Pastor and congregation rushed with a devout impulse toward the door, and evinced in the most unmistakable manner that their desire to have the rocks of San Francisco cleft for their special concealment was entirely a figurative and metaphorical impulse, wholly consistent with a decided preference, on their part, with the most intense preference for above ground and open air. Dr. Watts evidently needs some revision before it can be sung in safety in California.

A Dilemma.

Editors Globe—At a meeting of an association, some time since, a resolution was introduced, proposing to make a change in the time of holding conventions, so that instead of convening four times in a year, or quarterly, the meetings should be held three times a year. The language of the resolution was:

"Resolved, * * * that we meet triennially instead of quarterly."

Some one objected, saying, "that would be once in three years." This brought down the laugh on the author of the resolution. A divine who was present said the word should be "tri-annually." A lawyer said neither would be right. After adjournment, your correspondent, with others, examined "Webster," but could not find any word to fit the place. We have "tri-weekly" defined three times a week; we have the prefix tri with various suffixes, signifying three in one; why not tri-annually, and define it three times a year, with as much propriety as semi-annually, twice a year? But the "best speakers and writers" have not used it; there is no "tri-annually" in the lexicon, hence the dilemma. Will you, or some of your readers, enlighten us, or must we say three times a year? Is there no one word that conveys the idea? "Brevity is the spice," &c. Please let us be informed through the Globe, and oblige

LINGUA.

Birmingham, March 14, 1870.

Although, as our correspondent asserts, there is no "tri-annually" in the lexicon, nor any word, as we know of, that signifies three times a year, we can not see why, in this word coining age, the word "tri-annually" would not be appropriate, and prove as significant as the words "semi-annually" or "quarterly." If we had occasion to use a term to imply three times a year we would say "tri-annually" as we now use the word "tri-weekly" to signify three times a week.

An Epidemic.

A disease, something similar to the whooping cough, is prevailing among many of the children in this borough and vicinity, and some have died from the effects. On Sunday a week five children were lying dead from this disease, and since then a number more have died, and the total within three weeks may be estimated twenty two. The symptoms of the disease are a cough, which brings up a greenish phlegm, and if this is not removed, it goes back and settles upon the lungs causing inflammation, and the child at this stage seldom recovers.—One of our physicians informs us that the number he has already treated for the different forms of this disease would reach about two hundred; of this number eight have died; so that it would appear the infection has spread with great rapidity. A child attacked with this malignant disease should be at once placed under the care of a physician, as if left to continue the chances for its recovery are greatly lessened.

☞Judge Agnew has delivered the opinion of the Supreme Court of the State, that in proceedings under the Landlord and Tenant act of December 14th, 1863, to recover possession of the demised premises, service of notice on December 25th is a legal three months' notice, the last day of the term being the 24th of the following March. The law provides that the landlord shall prove that the term is fully ended, and the three months' previous notice has been given. The Court, therefore, held that the term had not fully ended until March 25th, and that as December 25th must be considered a whole day, service on that day was a day's notice, and that the three months' notice was complete and fully ended. The Court also reaffirmed the rule that when by any act of the Legislature, a given number of days are allowed to do an act, or when an act may be done within a number of days, the day on which the rule is taken or the decision made is excluded. The decision in the landlord and tenant case, however, depends upon the particular wording of the act of March 24th, 1863.

Affray.

A young man named Allen West, from the vicinity of Tyrone, entered a bar-room in this place on Saturday last, and while in an intoxicated condition, commenced tantalizing another young man named John Smearman, who is the bar-tender. The latter, from what we can learn, left him and went to another part of the room, when West becoming very disorderly, Smearman ordered him out, but refusing to do so, the latter struck him on the head with a club or poker, and caused the blood to flow freely, and probably injuring his brain. The young man is in a precarious condition.

ACCIDENTS.—On Saturday the 12th inst., Mr. Oliver Hollingshead, a brakeman on the H. & B. T. R. R, whilst engaged in coupling cars at Summit Station, had his right hand mashed to such an extent that it was necessary to amputate the third finger. The balance of the hand may be saved by careful attention.

—William Artley, employee of the Huntingdon Manufacturing Company, had his little finger cut off by a saw, on Monday last.

—A man, Jas. Adams, from Hollidaysburg, had three fingers on his right hand crushed between two cars at the coal wharf on Saturday last.

The following is one of the hints to those who desire to attend Anna Dickinson's lecture in Bellefonte on the 28th inst.: "That seats will be set apart for colored folks, so that neither race will be disgusted by too close proximity to the other." Such hint, we think, is partially unnecessary, as we have never heard of a darkey that was disgusted by too close proximity to a pale face.

FOR SALE.—A couple of choice lots well situated in the central part of West Huntingdon, are offered for sale at a low price, on good terms. Apply before May 1st.

March 23-3t. ROBT U. JACOB.

☞Luke Reilly, the baker, supplies families with the best bread, cakes, etc., at moderate prices. He also manufactures the choicest plain and fancy Candies, and furnishes dealers at cheaper rates than the same can be had in the city.

CHURCH MANNERS.—The Christian Union takes up the subject of "Church Manners," and treats it in a most sensible manner. We give a summary: We hear much said about a becoming behaviour in the house of God; and it is laid down that one should be devoted and reverential in church. But will this justify a man in keeping his pew-door shut when strangers are without seats? or in permitting those who are within his reach to go without a book while he is devoutly using the best one in the pew? If in some cases there were less sobriety and politeness, would not the devotions be more profitable to the soul, and more acceptable to God? The fact is, one may have his mind entirely raised above the world on Sunday, as to forget a great many little duties quite allied to that benevolence which the gospel inculcates. No Christian man has a right to make another unhappy, or even to annoy him, through self indulgence, carelessness, or selfish devotion. Violent perfumes, especially those containing musk, are disagreeable to most persons, and to some positively distressing; and ought therefore to be avoided when going into a crowded assembly. Whispering in church, during service, is an affront to politeness. Coughing can be avoided, in a great degree, by taking a few precautionary measures; and in all cases when it is a man's duty to sleep in church, it his duty also to snore with the soft-pedal down. Since every one likes to see the minister, each one should take some thought that he may obstruct the sight of those behind him as little as possible. Many churches have the Ten Commandments set upon the wall, in sight of the whole congregation, although not one of the sins reported therein is likely to be committed in church time. Would it not be well to have another tablet enumerating the sins which men are prone to commit in church time?

A GOOD MOTHER—Sometimes one hears it said of a good wife and mother that "she's a regular home body." The phrase is simple, but what a world of ennobling qualities it indicates, and what a world of trivolities it excludes. The matronly home body is indeed "Heaven's best gift to man." Dashing ladies, whose mission it is to set the fashions, won't you look in upon your gentle sister as she sits in her well ordered nursery making the children happy with her presence? Note how she adjusts their little difficulties, and admonishes, encourages, instructs, or amuses them, as the case may require. Do you think any nursemaid could produce such harmony in that little circle? Is she not an enchantress?—Verily, yes, and her charms are 'love stronger than death,' for those sweet young faces, where you may see her smiles and frowns (though she seldom has occasion to frown,) reflect in glee and sorrow, like sunlight and cloud shadow in a quiet pool. What she is, she will teach her daughter to be; and blessed are the sons that have such a mother.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.—The March No. of this popular children's paper, just received, presents an unusual variety of contents. There are over twenty different articles, all original, and some of quite superior merit. Its success has been very remarkable, 25,000 circulation being already secured; the publishers say they intend to make it 100,000 by the time it is one year old, which will be next July. They offer to send the four numbers for March, April, May and June, free to all who subscribe before July first. Terms, 50 cents a year. Specimen copy free.

☞We are sending out bills to a number of our subscribers, which we hope they will consider as duns or notices to pay up when an opportunity offers—say at April Court. Some of the bills date too far back for either our satisfaction or the subscribers'. A large bill is much harder to pay than a small one. We want all our subscribers to pay inside of the year for which they subscribe. We are thankful to those who have paid up. tf

We have received a copy of the Daily Topic printed at Harrisburg, by John H. Gihon, formerly private Secretary to Gov. Geary. Its aim is to sustain Republican principles, in which we hope it may succeed. It is a neat, sprightly, and newsy paper, and gives promise of a long life.

Some one says the Pope is making a crusade upon the improprieties of dress, and we learn he lays the blame upon the shoulders of the ladies. The Detroit Tribune wickedly says: The Pope is at fault. We have examined the shoulders of the ladies and haven't found a blame thing there.

☞An exchange says: "A fighting man has been employed on this paper. He weighs eight hundred pounds. His wrists are the very tools of death; his hair is short; his eyes are black; his boots are No. 12. O, he is a monster, this fighting man of ours! He goes for men like an ant for green cheese. He was never thrashed. O, he is a whale! He ate seven cans of oysters at our office the other night, and called for more. He's the heaviest instrument of total and eternal punishment on record! Come at us, ye lean and lank, overgrown specimens of humanity; spit on our boots if you dare; slide down our cellar door if you can, and if our Wallapus don't everlastingly go for you, then size and heft have nothing in them."

The freaks of a horned owl in the dark, at Stillwater, Minn., recently convinced a lot of lumbermen that their camp was possessed of the devil. The owl used to seize upon the hats of men out after dark and carry them off. It was finally caught. It measures, length of wings, five feet, and has long tufts of feathers on its head resembling horns. The claws are one and a quarter inches in length. Its weight when killed was fifteen pounds.

A few days ago some leading politicians called on Governor Hoffman, and after some conversation one of them said, "Well, Governor, if you won't do what we want you to do, you shall not be Governor for a second term, I can assure you of that." "Very well, gentlemen," rejoined Hoffman, in his usual quiet way, "I intend to be Governor for one term, at any rate."

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Head, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

VII.

TREES—WOOD-LAND—FORESTS.

I am not at all sentimental—much less spooney—regarding the destruction of trees. Descended from several generations of timber cutters (for my paternal ancestors came to America in 1640) and myself engaged for three years in land-clearing, I realize that trees exist for use rather than for ornament, and have no more scruple as to cutting timber in a forest than as to cutting grass in a meadow. Utility is the reason and end of all vegetable growth—of a hickory's no less than a cornstalk's. I have always considered "Woodman, spare that tree," just about the most mawkish bit of badly versified prose in our language, and never could guess how it should touch the sensibilities of any one. Understand then, that I urge the planting of trees manly because I believe it will pay, and the preservation, improvement, and extension, of forests, for precisely that reason.

Yet I am not insensible to the beauty and grace lent by woods and groves, and clumps and rows of trees, to the landscape they diversify. I feel the force of Emerson's averment, that "Beauty is its own excuse for being," and know that a homestead embowered in, and belted by, stately, graceful elms, maples, shrubs and evergreens, is really worth more, and will sell for more, than if it were naked field and meadow. I consider it one positive advantage (to balance many disadvantages) our rocky, hilly, rugged Eastern country that it will never, in all probability, be so denuded of forests as the rich, facile prairies and swales of the Great Valley may be. Our winds are less piercing, our tornadoes less destructive, than those of the great west. I doubt whether there is another equal area of the earth's surface whereon so many kinds of valuable trees grow spontaneously and rapidly, defying eradication, as throughout New England and on either slope of the Alleghenies, and this profusion of timber and foliage may well atone for, or may be fairly weighed against, many deficiencies and drawbacks. The Yankee, who has been accustomed to see trees spring up spontaneously wherever they were not kept down by ax, or plow, or scythe, and to cross running water every half mile of a Summer day's journey, may well be made homesick, by two thousand miles of naked, dusty, wind swept plains, whereon he finds no water for fifty to a hundred miles, and knows it impossible to cut an axhelve, much more an axle-tree, in the course of a wearying journey. No Eastern farmer ever realized the blessedness of abundant and excellent wood and water until he had wandered far from his boyhood's home.

No one may yet be able fully to explain the inter-dependence of these two blesings; but the fact remains. All over "the Plains" there is evidence that trees grew and flourished where none are now found, and that springs and streams were then frequent and abiding where none now exist. A prominent citizen of Nevada, who explored southward from Austin to the Colorado, assured me that his party travelled for days in the bed of what had once been a considerable river, but in which it was evident that no water had flowed for years. And I have heard that, since the Mormons have planted trees over considerable sections of Utah, rains in Summer are no longer rare, and Salt Lake evinces, by a constant though moderate increase of her volume of waters, that the equilibrium of rain-fall with evaporations in the Great Basin has been fully restored—or rather, that the rain-fall is now taking the lead.

I have a firm faith that all the great deserts of the Temperate and Torrid Zones will yet be reclaimed by irrigation and tree-planting. The bill which Congress did not pass, nor really consider, whereby it was proposed, some years since, to give a section of the woodless Public Lands remote from settlement to every one who in a separate township, would plant and cherish a quar-section of choice forest-trees, ought to have been passed—with modifications, perhaps, but preserving the central idea. Had ten thousand quarter-sections, in so many different townships of the Plains, been thus planted to timber ten to twenty years ago, and protected from fire and devastation till now, the value of those Plains for settlements would have been nearly or quite doubled.

A capital mistake, it seems to me, is being made by some of the dairy farmers of our own State. One who has a hundred acres of good soil, whereof twenty or thirty are wooded, cuts off his timber entirely, calculating that the additional grass that he may grow in its stead will pay for all the coal he needs for fuel, so that he will make a net gain of the time he has hitherto devoted each Winter to cutting and hauling wood. He does not consider how much his soil will lose in Summer moisture, how his springs and runnels will be dried up, nor how the sweep of harsh winds will be intensified, by barring his hill-tops and ravines to sun and breeze so utterly. In my deliberate judgment, a farm of one hundred acres will yield more feed, with far greater uniformity of product from year to year, if twenty acres of its ridge-crests, ravine sides, and rocky places, are thickly covered with timber, than if it be swept clean of trees and all devoted to grass. Hence, I insist that the farmer who sweeps off his wood and resolves to depend on coal for fuel, hoping to increase permanently the product of his dairy, makes a sad miscalculation.

Spain, Italy, and portions of France, are now suffering from the improvidence that devoured their forests, leaving the future to take care of itself. I presume the great empires of antiquity suffered from the same folly, though to a much greater extent. The remains of now extinct races who formerly peopled and tilled the central valleys of this continent, and especially the territory of Arizona, probably bear witness to a similar recklessness, which is paralleled by our fathers' and our own extermination of the magnificent forests of White Pine which, barely a century ago, covered so large a portion of the soil of our Northern States. Vermont sold White Pine abundantly to England through Canada within my day: she is now supplying her own wants from Canada at a cost of not less than five times the price she sold for; and she will be paying still higher rates before the close of this century. I entreat our farmers not to preserve every tree, good, bad, or indifferent, that may happen to be growing on their lands—but, outside of the limited districts wherein the primitive forest must still be cut away in order that the land may be obtained for cultivation, to plant and rear at least two better trees for every one they may be impelled to cut down. How this may, in the average, be most judiciously done, I will try to indicate in my next.

McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR,

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headach.

McGUIRE'S

WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All these preparations are put up in the most elegant and ornamental manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and none complete without them.

Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States and Canadas. Address orders to

GET THE BEST

READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and sample (sent free.)

We also manufacture

GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peal off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

County rights for sale.
